FINGERS CLUTCHED LIMB

So Tight That They Had to be Cut Open by His Rescuer.

Harrodsburg, Ky.—Oscar Lewis, a farmer, was drowned, and Miller Burch, his neighbor, had a thrilling experience while going home from this place. The men were in a two-horse wagon and attempted to ford Three Lick Creek, which was swollen by an all-day rain. They drove into the water and before they realized it the horses were washed off their feet and the wagon upset. Lewis was caught under the wagon bed, and together with the struggling team, was rushed downstream. They were found by a searching party a half mile below the ford. Lewis and the horse were dead, but the mule had managed to keep his head above water, although nearly blind. He was cut loose from the harness and rescued by Frank Votaw, who swam out in the stream with a knife in his teeth. When the wagon upset, Burch, who did not know how to swim, was swept out on the current, but managed to grab a small limb. The supple limb bent and curved with the weight of his body, and as the raging water rushed by he was plunged up and down in the flood, but, though almost fainting, he kept his hold. He called for help with all the breath that was left in him, but it was three hours before aid reached him. Neighbors finally came to the rescue and Charles Shattuck volunteered to go to the rescue. Burch was almost frozen from being in the water so many hours and his hands were so stiff from his desperate clutch on the limb that his fingers had to be pried open by his rescuer.

CONTINENTAL GIVES UP

And Will Pay $127,581.12 Back Taxes to Louisville.

Louisville, Ky.—The Continental Tobacco Co., through its attorney, Charles H. Gibson, advised City Attorney Richards that it would pay into the city treasury $127,581.12 on account of back taxes for the years 1900 to 1904, inclusive—five years. The Continental Co. resisted the payment of city taxes on the ground that when they absorbed the Finzer, Doerhoeffer, Weissinger and American plants they were a new concern, and under a city ordinance granting new concerns five years' exemption they claimed they are not liable. The city attorney resisted this claim, and the case has been in litigation for the past two years.

The court of appeals a few days ago held that the plants absorbed were not new concerns, and were liable for city taxes. The victory of the city attorney in this case settles a large number of other cases pending, and the city will realize a large amount of revenue from this source.

He started home along the L. & N. track and was beaten on the head and robbed of $2 and a gold watch and chain by the negro, who left him for dead on the railroad track. He lives two miles west of Covington, on the Madison pike, and about 20 minutes after he was assaulted he came to, and remembering that the fast train southbound was on the track barely in time to escape death from the train that passed. He went to Winscher's saloon on Main street, Latonia, where he presented a frightful spectacle. His head was badly lacerated and bruised and his body was badly beaten. The Covington police were notified and given a description of the negro, who wore blue overalls. He was then released to his home. The injured man is 53 and the father of a family.

The boys were examining the weapon in a stable and tried to put it back in the box where they found it. The hammer hit the side of the box, and the charge struck Russell Malloy's right side below his neck, breaking the collar bone. Young Hanganian tried to stop the blood with his hands, and, failing, ran from one office to another for a doctor, with the blood of his playmate streaming from his hands. Learning that the Malloy boy would die he tried to cut his throat with a knife, saying: "If Russell dies I want to die, too." The children had been inseparable.

KILLED BY THE MOBILE OFFICERS

WAS THE ENRAGED MOB SENT ON LYNCHING THE NEGRO.

Cut a Special Policeman Was Fatally Shot and an Alderman Injured in the Ensuing Riot.

Mobile, Ala., Oct. 3.—Roy Hoyle, a special officer of the Mobile & Ohio railroad, and one of the most widely known and best-liked men in this vicinity, was fatally shot, and Alderman Sidney Lyons, chairman of the city council of Mobile, was slightly wounded in the head during a fight at the county jail between deputy sheriffs and a crowd of men, determined to capture Dick Robinson, a young negro.

The mob is still hunting the negro, and will lynch him if captured. He is only 17 years of age, and was said to be wearing his first long trousers. He attacked Ruth, the 12-year-old daughter of Blount Sossaman, who lives about three miles from here. The girl was passing a secluded spot not far from her home when the assault took place. Later she was found lying unconscious by the roadside, and was taken to her home.

Detectives were placed on the track of the negro and within three hours he was captured. When found he had substituted his short pants for the trousers he had on earlier in the day. He was taken before the Sossaman girl, who at once identified him. Deputy Sheriff Patch, knowing that the life of the negro would be taken by a mob if he brought him into the city, caused him to be conveyed to a station several miles up the Mobile & Ohio railroad. He was not taken to the jail at all and was at least eight miles from the city when the mob, bent on lynching him, approached the building.

Epidemic of Assaults.

There have been several assaults upon white women within the last few weeks, and the news of this latest outrage caused intense wrath and excitement.

Sheriff Powers met the leaders of the mob and informed them that the man they were seeking was not in the jail and had never been brought there. He offered to let anybody whom he personally knew pass through the jail to satisfy the crowd of the truth of his statement. About 40 men walked through the corridors, some of them returning and assured the members of the mob that the man was not there.

While several men, including Hoyle and Lyons, were still in the jail, a portion of the crowd, led by a tall, rawboned man, whose name is not known, seized a telephone pole and dashed it against the closed part of a double door, one half of which was open. The door fell with a crash and almost instantly a shot came from a revolver in the hands of a man standing in the gate. At once the members of the mob commenced a fusillade, and about a dozen revolver shots were fired, and then came several shots from a rifle held in the hands of a man who leveled it above his head and worked it vigorously while holding it in that position.

Not more than a dozen men took part in the firing, and as the shot rang out there was a stampede on the part of the crowd. The mob was widely scattered and in a few seconds Alderman Lyons, who had been on the inside of the jail, came out, and holding up his hands from which the blood was streaming, announced that he had been shot and that Roy Hoyle had received a bullet through the left lung.

Roy Hoyle, the special policeman who was shot during an assault of the mob on the jail in search of a negro friend, is dead. The mob failed to find the negro.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

Declares Design to Annex the Cuban Island Is Far From Him.

Washington, Oct. 3.—President Roosevelt discussed freely with his cabinet and with individual callers, among whom were Senators Knox and Foraker, the present situation in Cuba. He said that the action taken was destined solely for the benefit of the people of the island, with a view to the complete restoration of order there and the protection of all interests. He declared that he had no such motive in view as the possible annexation of the government of the island by the United States. What he wanted now was that the Cubans should be given another chance at self-government.

Unless extraordinary conditions arise no extra session of congress will be called to deal with the Cuban situation, as the president considers he has ample authority to proceed in the matter. It seems to be well settled that former Gov. Charles E. Mason, of the Panama Canal Zone, who has just returned from Panama, will be appointed governor of the provisional regime of Cuba in succession to Secretary Taft.

AN EDUCATIONAL QUESTION

While education is not everything, yet for a child from his 6th to his 20th year it should be one of the two vital concerns of his life. The parent does only a simple duty when he takes an interest in his child's education. And that duty is but discharged when he makes it easy for his child to acquire an education. As in everything else, so in education, old defective methods are being replaced by the new and better ways. And years are being added to life by giving children in six years what it took their parents twelve years to acquire by the old methods. The old method puts one or two books in a child's hands, and these are gone over year after year with little thought of advancement. No special classification or grading, a few pupils in different subjects forming separate classes, thus multiplying classes, and each going without any reference to studies which should go together in groups.

The better way is now being adopted even in the common schools. It grades the pupils, works progress, and stops the yearly doubling back over the same studies. I believe there ought to be more graded common schools; and I believe there will be as soon as the citizens see the advantages they will bring. I wish to mention a few of the advantages of graded schools, taken from teachers of authority:

1. They save labor.
2. They are more economical.
3. They are productive of better teaching.
4. They are more easily governed.
5. They prompt the ambition of pupils.
6. They furnish education in the higher branches.

It might be a wise thing for teachers everywhere, and other citizens also, to give more attention to the question of grading the public schools. If the benefits are as claimed, and I believe they are, no patron of a public school should refuse to contribute his part to any effort to make his child's education more complete.
